ERIC contains a wealth of educational information from 1966 to the present, and much of it is not indexed anywhere else. So use it, and use it often! Each piece in the ERIC database has a number. There are ED numbers—Education Documents; and there are EJ numbers—Education Journal items (i.e., articles). The ED numbered documents are more difficult to locate. They can be papers given at conferences, presentations, or any kind of report. Oh, and did I mention that most of the documents and articles are available in full-text format?

Here what you will see on the ERIC homepage:

Below is the screen you see after you run a search. Be sure and check out the lists on the left side of the screen for more ways to limit your search!